

Assessment literacy is seen (...) as a sine qua non for today's competent educator. (...) [It] is a commodity needed by teachers for their own long-term well-being, and for the educational well-being of their students (Popham 2009: 1, 11).

The Consortium for Translation Education Research (CTER) in association with the University of Westminster in London, England and the Jagiellonian University in Kraków, Poland are pleased to announce a jointly organised workshop on assessment literacy for translator trainers. This 2-day training workshop will be led by Dr Elsa Huertas Barros and Juliet Vine who have been actively involved in research on translator education and, in particular, assessment practices over the last five years. The workshop has the official endorsement of the Consortium for Translation Education Research (CTER).
